Reality versus Emotions

South Dakota people are independent people. It makes us what we are. That is a good thing, except when emotions become interruptive.

Reality of life can be affected by emotions.

Reality Now is all the various financial situations within the State of South Dakota. Ranging from family farms and ranches struggling to remain viable to Township and County Budgets to the State's Budgets.

One has to give a little to the other in understanding the factual reality of our states situation (notice the number of entities "opting out"...)

Should we let emotions dictate solving real problems? In our State's real situation emotions need to 'give way' to solving these real problems. Of course I'm the common sense and practicality of endorsing the States natural asset of wind power!

We were extremely happy to see Governor Dangaard's article/column, "Wind Power Contributing to South Dakota's Economy".

Thank You for your time!
