

Section 4.02 METER READINGS

Unless authorized by statute, rule, or other appropriate authority, the Company will collect Customer Energy consumption as registered by the Meter(s) used for determining charges to Customers each month. The term “month” for Meter Reading and billing purposes is the period between successive Meter Reading dates, which shall be as near as practicable to 30-day intervals. When the Company is unable to remotely obtain the Customer’s Energy consumption for a full billing period of actual usage, the Company may use an estimated reading for up to two months as arrangements are made for a Company representative to obtain readings or gain access to the meter.
